

According to the announcement at the web site of the Turkey's General Staff, "General Staff Warfare and Cyber Defense Command" unit was established in 2012 to protect its data against cyber attacks.

World Buletin / News Desk

The Turkish Armed Forces (TSK) has established a cyber defence unit. According to the announcement at the web site of the Turkey's General Staff, "General Staff Warfare and Cyber Defense Command" unit was established in 2012 to protect its data against cyber attacks.

It was said that the TSK expands its warfare capabilities in cyber space along with its other operation areas; land, naval, air and aerospace.

The unit will be in coordination with the Ministry of Transport, Maritime Affairs and Communications and the Scientific and Technological Research Council of Turkey and NATO in both national and international missions.

Legal Notice: Copyright, trade marks and other intellectual property rights in this website can not be reproduced without the prior permission.

No Comment Yet
General News

Turkey detains 38 foreigners seeking to join ISIL

Turkey goes on offensive against ISIL suspects ahead of G20 summit in Mediterranean resort of Antalya and after spate of bloody attacks blamed on extremists

400,000 Syrian refugee children not in school in Turkey

HRW urges international community to act urgently to ensure Syrians who have fled the four-and-a-half year conflict have greater access to education

TURKISH PRESS REVIEW ON NOV 9