The creation of the National Cyber Response Centre (Cyber-AZ) is a response to the new cyber threats that are not based in reality to authorities responsibilities and provides for closer cooperation between the relevant federal agencies.

A rapid information exchange is established, fast and reviews from the following recommendations are the goal. Participating agencies will benefit in their area of responsibility of the common knowledge.

Civil Protection and Disaster Assistance (BBK), the Federal Criminal Police (BKA), the Federal Police (BPOL), the Customs Office (CCC), the Federal Intelligence Service (BND) and the Bundeswehr, the Cyber-AZ. ,

Under the auspices of the Federal Office for Security in Information Technology (BSI) are the Federal Office for the Protection of the Constitution (BfV), the Federal Office for

All agencies work cooperatively together while fully protecting its statutory duties and powers. The Cyber-AZ is networked with the situation centers and similar bodies of the authorities involved, in which the operative work is done.

The Cyber-AZ all information about cyber attacks elicit the authorities within their powers combined. How rated the BSI a cyber attack from a technical perspective, the BfV deals with the question whether the attack may be expected from a foreign intelligence service and the BBK assess the impact of potential attacks on infrastructure. In addition, the participating authorities add their insights into new avenues of attack and attack tools, thus lies within a very short time before a recent and comprehensive picture of the situation.

Short-balance sheet

The Cyber Defence Centre has established itself successfully as an information hub between the authorities involved. The communication channels required has been established, the employees have developed a multi-agency team spirit and work purposefully and efficiently together. Daily briefings and work in working groups on specific topics are the basis for their work.

The Cyber-AZ has since its inception in the period April 2011, around 900 national and international to March 2013 IT -Sicherheitsvorfälle rated .. The majority of incidents attended criminally motivated and had a profit as a background. But an increasing number of cases in the area of "hactivism" was recorded. This is a fairly new phenomenon in the unclassifiable it not clear, often diverging objectives comes to businesses and government agencies expose by attacking their databases and subsequent release of the data.

The observation of security incidents and resulting risk situation is becoming more essential requirement of the IT -Sicherheitsgestaltung. A close cooperation between security authorities is mandatory in this case, an early exchange of information between stakeholders is fundamental to a consistent and - using the respective expertise in preventive and repressive areas - effective action in case of damage.
