ARTICLE (11)

The author alone has the right to introduce to his work whatever amendment or change which he deems to be fit. He has the right of translating it into another language. Others are not permitted to do any of those actions, or to make any of the other acts mentioned in Article 5 without a written notarized permission from the author.

ARTICLE (12)

The heirs of the author have the right to practise translating the work.

ARTICLE (13)

The author has the right to refute any violation of his rights. He may prevent any deletion, addition or change to his work. However, if the deletion, addition or change took place in the translation of the work, the author has no right to prevent it, unless the translator denied the reference to the places of the deletion or change or the author's reputation and artistic stand have been defamed therefrom.

ARTICLE (14)

The following uses of the protected works shall be considered legal even if they are not accompanied by the author's consent:

Getting the assistance of the work for only the special personal use by copying, translation, adaptation, musical arrangement, acting, broadcast listening, television watching or photography with any other form. Getting the help of the work for explication in education by publications, broadcast or television programmes and records or cinema films for educational, instructive or religious aims or for vocational training, and in the limits of realizing such aim, provided the intention of use is not for making financial profit, in addition to mentioning the source and the author's name. Citing paragraphs of the work in another work with the aim of clarification, explanation or criticism, and in the limits of the known tradition and in the extent which is justified by such aim, provided the source shall mention the author's name. The same is applied on the paragraphs taken from press articles and periodicals which are declared in the form of press summaries.

ARTICLE (15)

It may be possible, without the author's permission, to copy the political, economic, social, cultural or religious news articles which tackle the topical subjects, or to be published by newspapers or periodical, and also the broadcasting works of similar nature provided that the source is mentioned. It shall be permitted to reproduce any work of art which can be watched or listened to during the presentation of current events or to publicize it by photographic or television filming or any means of the mass media, provided the same should be in the limit of the information objective aimed at, with reference to the name of the author.

ARTICLE (16)

Public libraries, non-commercial documentation centers, educational institutes, and scientific and cultural institutions may, without the author's permission, copy the protected works by photographing or by a similar method, provided that copying and the number of copies are limited to the needs of their activities and doing no harm to the financial exploitation of the works and also do not cause harm to the legal interests of the author. The broadcast organizations may prepare a temporary recording of any work for their programmes and by their own methods, having been permitted to broadcast thereof. All copies should be destroyed within a period not exceeding one calendar year with effect from the date of preparation. The author may extend this period. The records of documentary characteristic in the limit of one copy, are exceptions to this right.

ARTICLE (17)

The press and the other mass media means shall publish, without the permission of the author, the speeches, lectures, speeches for the defense delivered during judicial disputes, and such similar works openly communicated to the public provided that the author's name is clearly mentioned. The author alone shall have the right to publish these works in one volume or in any other way he deems fit.

ARTICLE (18)

The heirs of the author, after his death, shall have the right to exercise the financial exploitation rights of the work provided for in Article (7) of this Law.

ARTICLE (19)

If the author dies before he determined the publication of his work, his right shall be assigned to his successors who, alone, may practise the author's rights. However, if the author has recommended in his will to prevent the publication or fixed a certain date for the publication, it is obligatory to execute his will in this respect.

ARTICLE (20)

The copyright shall be valid during the author's lifetime and for twenty five calendar years after his death. The validity period of the copyright shall be twenty five calendar years from publication date for the following works: Cinema films and the works of the applied arts.

Works made by legal persons.

Works published under a pen name, or without mentioning the author's name to hide his personality till he reveals it.

Works published for the first time after the death of their author.

The validity period of the copyright for photographic works shall be ten calendar years from the date of publication. The validity period of the author's rights of the works of joint-authors shall be counted from the death date of the last surviving person of the authors. In case the work consists of parts which were published separately indifferent times, each part shall be considered an independent work in respect of the calculation of protection period.

ARTICLE (21)

The works published by the heirs for the first time after the decease of the author shall be subject to the protection and they shall have the right to exploit them financially.

ARTICLE (22)

If the author's heirs neglected publishing his work and the Minister deems that the public interest necessitates the publication of the work, he may ask the heirs in writing to publish it. If six months elapsed after the date of that request and the heirs have not published the work, the Minister may practise its printing and the right of publication thereof, and to compensate the heirs, in such case, with a fair compensation.

ARTICLE (23)

If some persons participated in preparing a work in a manner which makes it difficult to separate the share of each of them in the joint-work, all shall be equally considered owners unless they agreed contrary thereof. Any partner shall not practise the rights resulting from the copyright unless they all agreed thereof. Any dispute raised among them shall be determined by the legal authorities. Each of the joint-authors has the right to raise claims in case of any violation to the copyright. This right shall be transferred to the heirs of any of them.

ARTICLE (24)

The work prepared by a group of authors or by one author under the direction of a natural or legal person to publish it in his name and under his management, this natural or legal person who directed the creation of such work shall alone have the right of practising the author's financial rights, unless the contract between the two parties includes the contradiction thereof, or contains certain conditions. As for the literary right of the work affiliation, it shall remain for the author or the authors of such works.

ARTICLE (25)

In case of joint-participation in preparing musical song composition works, the author of the melody and music alone has the right of public performance permission of the total work, its execution, publication or copying without violating the right of the author of the literary part. This provision shall apply on the works which are executed in works of motions accompanied by music, shows accompanied by music and in all other similar works.

The author of the literary part shall have the right to publish only his own part. However, he shall not have the right to dispose such part to be the basis of another similar work unless there is a written agreement for the contrary thereof.

ARTICLE (26)

Each of the following persons shall be considered a partner in the preparation of the theatrical work, cinema work, or the work prepared for the broadcast or the television:

1. The author or the owner of the theme written for the broadcast, television, cinema or theatre programme.
2. The person who writes the dialogues.
3. The person who edits the existing literary work in a form to make it fit for the cinema art, television art or broadcast art.
4. The music composer if he composed it especially for the cinema work, broadcast work, television work or theatre work.
5. The director if he extended actual control and made a positive action from the intellectual aspect to realize the work in its previous forms.

If the work prepared for broadcast, television, cinema or theatre is adopted or extracted from another precedent work, the author of this precedent work will be considered participating in the new work, and his name shall be mentioned with reference to the adaptation or extraction explicitly.

ARTICLE (27)

If one of the participants in the creation of a cinema theatre work, or a work prepared for broadcast or television abstains from completing the works related to himself, this will not result in preventing the other participants from using the part he prepared without violating his rights resulting from his participating in the preparation in case the abstention is due to acceptable reasons which prevented him from completing the work. But if abstention is due to his individual will without having justifying reasons, he shall be deprived of any rights resulting from the part he completed.

ARTICLE (28)

If a literary author, scenarist, a dialogist, a director and a composer have collectively filed a cinematic, dramatic, radiophonic and television work of art each of them in his line of specialization, none of them shall have the right to prevent any reproduction or the showing of the work without prejudice to the composer's literary and financial rights. The scriptist and the composer may publish their works in any other way other than the cinema, theatre, radio and television unless otherwise agreed on.

ARTICLE (29)

The person who executes the tape takes the responsibility of such execution and gives the authors of the work the material and financial methods which warrant its production, is considered the producer of theatre, cinema, broadcast or television work.

The producer is always considered publisher of the work, and he shall have all the rights of the publisher for the tape and its copies. Throughout the exploitation period of the tape, the producer shall be considered as a representative of the authors of the theatre, cinema, broadcast or television work, their successors in agreement for its presentation and exploitation without violating the rights of the authors of literary or musical works, by publishing their works in other method, unless the contrary is agreed upon.

ARTICLE (30)

The Ministry has the right to broadcast the public works, such as public seminars, lectures, speeches, poetical evenings, cultural, literary and religious activities and the public art festivals which are presented or performed in theatres or any other public place. Officials for such place shall allow the Ministry's bodies, facilitate their function and surmount any difficulties before the broadcast or television, provided that the name of the author and the work's title shall be broadcasted.

ARTICLE (31)

The national folklore of the United Arab Emirates society shall be the public property of the State.

The State, represented by the Ministry, will act to protect the national folklore by all legal means and methods and exercise the author's specialties as regards the folkloric works against distortion, modification and commercial exploitation. ARTICLE (32)

The author may transfer any of his financial rights gained from his work according to the provisions of this Law to one or more persons. Such transfer should be completed in writing specifying explicitly each disposable right separately, showing the duration of such disposition or transfer, its method, its quantity, its purpose and its place. The author in using the disposed right shall not do any act which may hinder the person to whom the right has been transferred.

ARTICLE (33)

The Ministry shall set a special system for filing the works protected by this law and any dispositions that may arise thereof. It shall arrange the necessary forms and registers for filing.

ARTICLE (34)

Owners and authors of the intellectual works may apply to the Ministry for the registration of their works. The following particulars shall be attached with the registration application:

1. The name of the author, or authors in case of joint-works.
2. The subject of the work.
3. Ten copies of the work.
4. A detailed statement of the work's specifications.
5. A written undertaking from the author or authors showing that they own the work according to the provisions of this law.
6. An undertaking from the author or authors specifying the method they select for publishing the work.

ARTICLE (35)

The Ministry shall give the owner or the owners of the work a certificate containing the date of registration, its subject, kind and name/names of owner/owners.

ARTICLE (36)

The work submitted for filing should be passed from the Censorship Department of the Ministry, or be one of the works passed by the Press and Publications law.

ARTICLE (37)

The author alone, if essential reasons took place, may ask the concerned court to order the withdrawal of his work from circulation, or to enter essential amendments in the work, in spite of his disposition of the financial exploitation rights. In such cases, the author has to submit in advance a fair compensation to be determined by the court to those whom financial exploitation rights have been devolved.

ARTICLE (38)

The person who published a work not owned by him without getting a written permission from the work's author or his heirs or his representative, will be punished with imprisonment and with a fine of not less than (50000) Fifty Thousand Dirhams, or with either both penalties. The person who claims, contrary to the truth, that he is the owner of a work, shall be punished with the same penalty.

ARTICLE (39)

The publisher who, on the execution of publishing a work, amended the reality, the nature, the subject and the title of the work, violating thereby the instructions and desire of the author, shall be punished with imprisonment and with a fine not less than (10000) Ten Thousand Dirhams or by either of these penalties.

ARTICLE (40)

The publisher is not allowed to republish the work unless he gets the consent of the author for the agreed quantity of the work. If the publisher violates this provision, he shall be punishable under with the penalty mentioned in Article 39 of this law.

ARTICLE (41)

The only licensed stores and persons in the State are allowed to publish, copy or print any work. Those who violate such provision shall be punished with imprisonment for a period not exceeding six months and with a fine not exceeding (10000) Ten Thousands Dirhams, or by either of these penalties.

ARTICLE (42)

Stores practising the distribution, sale, or copying the models of the works are not allowed to sell or copy without a written consent from the author who is the owner of the work or the person he so authorized. The store owner who violates this provision will be punished with imprisonment or with a fine not less than (50000) Fifty Thousand Dirhams, or with either of these penalties.

ARTICLE (43)

In all cases mentioned in this chapter, all copies of the work which is the subject of the crime shall be confiscated. The court may also order the store closure.

ARTICLE (44)

The provisions of penalties prescribed in this chapter shall be applied on the translated works if the licensed publisher or distributor republished or redistributed the translated work in violation of the agreement concluded between him and the author.

ARTICLE (45)

All stores licensed for copying, distribution or sale of works in the State shall keep the written documents authorizing them thereof from the owner of the work or other concerned authorities, whether the work is from within the State or from abroad. Regarding the works prepared outside the State, a statement should be tendered to show the origin of such works and the permission or agreement authorizing the copying, distribution or sale, provided that such works are previously censored by the Ministry.

ARTICLE (46)

The Minister of Justice in agreement with the Minister of Information and Culture, and after consultation with the responsible authority in the concerned Emirate, shall issue a decision to nominate the employees who will have the judicial power of arrest in the enforcement of the provisions of this law. Such employees shall have the right to enter stores which publish, distribute, copy and produce works in the state. They shall have the power to capture violators of the provisions of this law. To do so, they may confiscate materials, copies and means used to commit the offences mentioned in the law. They may have the help of the security whenever warranted. ARTICLE (47)

The Minister shall issue the Executive By-Laws of this law.

ARTICLE (48)

All provisions which are contrary to the provisions of this law, shall be considered null and void.

ARTICLE (49)

This law shall be published in the Official Gazette and will be effective after six months from the date of its publication.
